

At Eastertime in Australia, chocolates often come in the shape of a bilby, a small animal with long ears like a rabbit and a pouch like a kangaroo. This marsupial lives in the desert and only comes out of its burrow at night.

To raise awareness about the shrinking bilby population, Australian conservation groups would like to replace the Easter bunny with the Easter bilby.

PRAY today for endangered animals and for people who work to protect God's creatures.